President Trump:

Re: Tax Returns

Release your tax returns so the American people can determine if you are hiding conflicts of interest or have financial relations with individuals that compromise your ability to act in the best interests of the US.

You are insulting norms and accepted political traditions that date back fifty years. The IRS has already stated that an audit does not restrict your ability to release them.

I can only conclude you are hiding something. Does Russia own you through loans and business deals? Or are you not as rich as you say you are. I have no reason to believe you, nor trust you, as you have consistently lied and offered up falsehoods to protect yourself. Sad.

You should act honorably, ie, without conflicts of interest, even if you, as President, cannot be charged with conflicts of interest legally. You have no integrity.
