President Trump:

Re: Words Matter

Your words reflect what you mean. Our higher spirits want to believe and trust when you utter words or issue pronouncements. Words matter.

You, as this writer believes, castigate the press yet your administration clearly exaggerates the truth in such petty matters as in the CrowdGate issue. You cast credibility as a fault in all directions; yet, only you alone, offer up “alternative facts” as a basis for comparison.

We can only trust each other when we can believe each other.
